

Week 3

Has there ever been a time when you had questions about science and faith? Tell us about it.

How can having questions actually help your faith grow stronger?

Read John 9:8-25

The blind man said, "One thing I do know: I was blind but now I see." What's one thing you're confident in when it comes to your faith or your experience with God?

How does it feel to know that God wants us to ask our questions?

What are some practical ways we can remind ourselves that God loves our curiosity and questions?

How can we support each other as a small group when someone shares doubts or questions?

This week, what's one way you can take a step toward God?

- Going on a walk and appreciating God's creation.
- Researching questions I have about faith and science.
- Praying for more understanding about faith and science.
- Talking to a trusted adult about my questions about faith and science.
- Starting a text chain with my small group to talk about our questions about faith and science.
- Reading the creation story (Genesis 1) in the Bible.
- Watching a documentary about Earth, science, or creation.
